Thierry Barbier,
you have left us too soon. When you landed in Juba in your ultra light plane having traveled all the way alone from Belgium, and ended with problems with National Security of South Sudan, I never thought that a gentle soul as yours would come to an end.
I recall talking with you about your stops in Uganda, Rwanda, then to Kenya and Djibouti before a short break. We have seriously lost a great person in you.

I never knew you but for two days thanks to the Embassy of France in South and Florence Miettaux. We were to go and have a proper South Sudanese meal but because of many other things it never happened.

May your selfless and giving soul be a reminder that great and good people for the good of this here mother earth.

Colin Lasu